OVER AT ATLANTIC CITY IN THE WORLD OF SOCIETY

FRENCH AMBASSADOR HAS STAFF AND GUESTS AT DINNER.

Big Bonnets and Hats Get Their Meed of Praise—Coming Events.

Special Correspondence of The Star.

ATLANTIC CITY, April 11, 1909.

The great spring festival of the church and the attractions of the horse show brought over 125,000 people to Atlantic City.

To be truthful, Easter Sunday was celebrated in both Christian and other ways. The church people were in the majority, however, if the crowd descending the church steps was a criterion. There were, of course, many worldly minded people who did not go to church, but lingered in smoking rooms or exchanges to discuss the brilliant close of the horse show the night before, until time for the return of the Easter parade up the Boardwalk from the churches. It is safe to say that every style of costume that you have seen pictured in the fashion papers was represented, and, in addition, all those styles in hats upon which the conservative-minded man has murmured, "What a waste of money," here, but so transformed by the buff of pretty hair and fresh young faces before them, that the strongest of people give the grotesque shape on the spot.

The roller-chair procession seems to be growing greater every year. Long lines of chairs, glass-enclosed and trundle-tride, laden with jocular young girls, jovial men and dignified dowagers. How the old ladies do dress down here! They are as gorgeous as the younger ones. In the music rooms of the hotels there were white satins and high heels and the girls were combed in their high-puffed white locks.

The Boardwalk parade seems endless. Sitting on the Marlborough, a parade of the walk, then the strongest of people give the grotesque shape on the spot.
